“ I fondly remember Ben as a teacher in our welding program. I regret not having kept up with him after retirement. He was a classy guy - who would show up each day to teach a his welding class in a perfectly starched long sleeve white shirt !

He was highly respected by his students, a did a fine job in teaching.

I can't tell you what gave me reason to search out where he was today, but I am certain it was partly out of some inspiration that remained with me that was reawakened regarding genuinely sincere and dedicated personalities I have known and respected.
