“ Joe was a close friend of my mom's and subsequently the family's since before I was even born. He was an old school guy who would always help you out if you asked, but not before busting your balls about it, which is something I always appreciated about his sense of humor.

I remember many summer bbqs in his backyard when I was in high school and we lived around the corner in Bartlett. He even got me a job at the trucking company he worked at while I was in college.

Joe was a good guy, and I am saddened to hear that he passed away. He will be missed by a lot of people.
